Excerpt: .and the station for Appledore, to which there is a ferry across the river. Appledore (= apple tree) is a busy fishing and shipping town immediately at the junction of the two rivers, the outport of Bideford, quaint in its look, and with an ancient, not to say fish-like, smell. It had its rise in the early days of the Newfoundland trade. 9m. Bideford. (Pop. 6969.) Hotels: Tantoris, New Inn, Newfoundland. Friendship s and Howe s are good houses of the Temperance class. Kingsley has once for all described the little white town of Bideford, which slopes upwards from its broad tide-river paved with yellow sands, and many-arched old bridge where salmon wait for autumn floods, towards the pleasant upland on the W. Above the town the hills close in, cushioned with deep oak woods, through which juts here and there a crag of...
