Do not sow too thickly, for the plants must not stand, after thinning, closer together than three inches. It is a seed of slow germination, so it is well to plant radish seed in the same row, for these fellows are jumpers and will serve three purposes--they will mark the row so that weeding can be done, break the surface of the soil to prevent baking, and give you a crop of radishes as a sort of extra dividend. Take good care of the young plants, keeping them free of weeds and the soil loose and mellow. In the fall, when the feathery leaves have turned yellowbrown, cut the stalks off at the ground, dig up the bed to a depth of three inches, whiten the ground with salt, and put over the entire surface four to six inches of fresh, loose, stable refuse, filled with straw. Some English authorities claim that it is wiser to sow salt once a month, and, although I have never seen that theory advanced in America, it may be worth a trial. The following spring rake off the coarsest of this manure and dig the balance under. The young shoots appear early, and if you have never seen them before, you will have to look closely for them. Asparagus may be forced, by lifting the roots carefully in the fall and placing them in a hotbed or greenhouse. The roots should be covered,...
